Baltimore Woods
Nature Center
Nature in your hands

Position: Nature in the City intern, unpaid

Duration: 15 hours

General Description: Our Nature in the City Internship offers a unique experience for those interested in exploring a career in environmental education. This award-winning program introduces Syracuse City School District students, grades K–6, to science through a series of hands-on, minds-on lessons. Interns observe Baltimore Woods Nature Center educators in virtual classrooms with the Nature in the City program. These lessons have transformed to fit in a virtual classroom setting that continues to engage and encourage students to learn about and explore their neighborhood green spaces.

During their internship interns will be responsible for:

- Carrying and setting up program materials.
- Observing virtual Nature in the City lessons.
- Assist educators with virtual content for both the Nature in the City program and Baltimore Woods Nature Center weekly social media content.
- Interns may also assist and observe on-site programming in the form of home school programming and/or k-8 day camp offerings.

Requirements:

- Flexible schedule. Interns need to be available during the day (9am-5pm) and occasionally weekends. Hours will vary depending on an individual's schedule.
- Transportation. Interns need to be able to meet educators at Baltimore Woods Nature Center at least 15 minutes before the start of the virtual lesson.
- Education. Interns should have or should be working toward a degree in education, interpretation environmental biology, or related field.

Due to COVID-19 health and safety requirements, all interns will be required to wear a mask when inside the Baltimore Woods Nature Center facilities and when unable to maintain the social distancing recommendation of 6 feet. Interns may also be subject to health screenings upon arrival to the preserve. Our health and safety protocols are available upon request and will be included in orientation.
